FOR BETTER FOR WORSE

Kandyan Marriage Custom.

A good Marriage Law ought to encourage the tendency of simplicity and the maximum of a citizen's duty. It is a social relation the most important between human beings (and) the foundation of society itself.

MR. ROY KENNEDY, George Meredith, in the 'White Winter' of his age, has pronounced a great revolutionary doctrine with regard to marriage. He says that it is a lifelong tie, for better for worse, but merely a temporary arrangement, lasting for a few years, a contract renewable at any time at the end of that period. It was a most heretical view, and Mr. Dooley, with his quaint humour, got the world to laugh the thought out of all consideration by picturing the glibly, amiability, independence, and the other womanly tactics the wife would employ as the period of her widowhood was drawing to a close. It is as well the dogma was laughed out, for it is bewildering to think what the results would have been had Meredith's views been followed into into practice. But, whatever the merits and demerits of such

A RELAXED LAW

Meredith could never have dreamed that as elastic a provision is in existence—and existent in this land—where every prospect pleases! If he had consulted Mr. Arundell's most inveterate enemy, Mr. Kennedy, he would have learned that among the Kandyan marriage is dissolvable by mutual consent, on the ground of inter alia, inability to live happily together! Meredith's amendment of the law which made 'twin-one-flesh' pales into insignificance before such a convenient elastic custom! Among the Kandyan there are two kinds of marriages—the 'diga' and the 'bina'. In the former the girl enters the husband's family; in the latter the husband enters the wife's family. But in both marriages the contract is terminable. Mr. Arundell, who has approved of this system, in a suit of far-off echo of Meredith in these words:—

'The Sinhalese deserve credit for evolving a marriage system well suited to the social needs of modern civilization, and not unworthy of adoption in those countries where marriage has for all practical purposes ceased to have any religious significance and become a civil contract.'

Taking the two kinds of marriages, in the 'diga', the husband is

THE PREDOMINANT PARTNER.

The wife and the dowry passes into the family of the husband, and she loses all claim upon her ancestral property, except for maintenance in case she is deserted. In the 'bina' the wife is the predominant partner, and the husband is dependent on her and her parents, and is liable to be turned out of his home at any time. The wife can at any time take another husband more agreeable to herself or the rest of the family. This latter kind of wedding is the one contracted by heathens, and there is a saying among the Kandyans that a 'bina' husband should not take to his in-law's house, with which he can depart at any moment!

The manner in which a marriage is arranged is interesting. As with certain other races in the island, the parents and relations have a great deal to do in the matter. When a husband is sought for a daughter, or a wife for a son, the parents or the chief relations of the one will communicate to the representatives of the other of the

DESIRABILITY OF A UNION.

Should the proposed union be approved of, the relatives of one or the other with a pingo to the house of the other and ask for the betrothal of the young person to be married. The betrothal of the two people is consummated, and should there be nothing untoward, a marriage is arranged, and the happy hour for the nuptials determined. When the day arrives the bridegroom, preceded by presents, starts with his relations and attendants to conduct the bride, and in many some way from the bride's house, by her relations and is welcomed in the

THE LUCKY HOUR APPROACHES

the bridegroom's mother or some other relatives present the bride's mother with a white cloth, and the bride's father gives the bridegroom a suit of clothes. The lucky hour having arrived, the bridegroom gives the bride a cloth, throws a white round hat over her head, and presents her with a set of female apparel. Arrived in these clothes she ascends the special raised dais, the masul poruwa, which has seats for the bride and bridegroom. A close relative here ties the little fingers of the couple together, and the couple turn three times toward the right and sit down together. Some balls of cakes, rice and milk, are then handed to the bridegroom, who exchanges them among themselves. The guests are then treated to refreshments of the same kind, and betel and endowood are distributed among them. The wedding is then complete. The bridegroom after that to his house. A close relative of the latter goes with him, and, approaching their destination, an elderly kinsman of the bridegroom meets them and makes them welcome. At the lucky hour the bride and bridegroom enter the room prepared for them.

The person who came with the bride from her house is entertained hospitably for seven days, and on the seventh day the ceremony of pouring water on the head takes place—the ceremony being performed by the elderly relative. The bride's parents and relatives come a few days after and present the dowry. The newly-wedded couple after this visit their parents.

These are the special provisions in the Kandyan marriage law, as laid down in a special Sinhalese work of authority. In the case of the bina, the husband enters the wife's family, and beyond the special festivities, and the marriage ceremony proper, has no ceremonial spread over so many days.

THE SIMPLON TUNNEL.

An Interesting Journey.

At the consecration of the Simplon Tunnel on April 2 (says the Standard's correspondent at Milan) the first thing that attracted my notice as I sat in the train awaiting us, made up of the trucks that usually carry the miners to and from their work. These roadless carriages are divided into two miniature compartments, each seating two persons, with their faces, and two with their backs, to the engine. An oil lamp is fixed on their side, between the entrances—there are no doors—so that the train alone creates a kind of twilight in the tunnel for the first five and a quarter miles. For this distance, indeed, the work is practically finished; the scaffolding and other encumbrances have been removed, and everything is seen plainly enough in the large vault, lined from first to last with masonry, through which we run. Every 200 metres is marked off by a large progressive number on the wall. Five of these go to a kilometre, and at each of the latter there is a pointman and a line branching off into the parallel tunnel, the completion of which has been indefinitely postponed. At No. 34, just before we have covered five miles, the steam locomotive drawing the train is exchanged for another driven by compressed air, and the train is illuminated at intervals by large acetylene lamps. For half-way between 42 and 43, we get to about a mile of road where smoke and heat must be kept down as much as possible. Here there is barely room for the passenger trucks, which are somewhat larger than those used to carry away the stuff excavated, to pass; and we are constantly warned, as the rugged rock or the scaffolding of thick beams hangs in on three sides, to keep our heads down and not let any other part of the body project from the carriages.

During the passage through this restricted space cold and warm water occasionally falls upon us in small quantities. It is never hot, but the cold streams having been employed to neutralise the hottest jets; and this is lucky, for a roof is so low that we have to go bareheaded, while the umbrellas we have been advised to bring are useless for the time being. In places we see sheets of zinc that protect us against a shower-bath of water, in fact, none of the springs, especially when first met with, were very formidable, not only on account of their size and of a temperature attaining to 120 deg., but also of a pressure varying between 150 lb. and 300 lb. per square inch. At other points we pass an apparatus which throws off spray, after the manner of a gardener's hose, from a number of apertures, and gives us a pleasant sensation of relief. It is a powerful pump at No. 53 that sends the fresh air from outside along the tunnel parallel to ours to blow away the smoke down the latter, and fight the temperature. The heat has been growing continually, until, as we got to No. 46, about 5½ miles from the Iselle entrance, the thermometer has risen to 86 deg. The train stops, and we go on carrying iron gags, among them carrying handlamps. At one place, where the last disphragm of rock was blown away, the passage is narrower than usual, but we have relatively more space around us even here that we had now and then in train. There is a little delay in opening the gate, as the train on the Swiss side keeps us waiting, and a few of the guests are slightly indisposed for the time being, the 86 deg. now reached by the thermometer proving too much for them. But the gate opens at last, and the long-expected meeting takes place, giving occasion to fresh outbursts of the enthusiasm that has characterised the whole of the proceedings. There are a few yards to walk on the other side before we get to the completed tunnel, where the Swiss train is waiting for us. From this point to the daylight at Brig, everything is plain sailing, the only break in the regularity of the tunnel being the siding at which the religious ceremony takes place, and the frontier, marked by a large transpiration, with the arms of Italy on one side and those of Switzerland on the other.

JAPAN IN COMMERCE.

JAPAN is apparently determined not only to maintain her political power, unimpaired, and even unchallenged in the East, but further, is wishing to secure an ascendancy in the commercial world, which will make her a powerful rival to all those whose ambition it is to secure the influence which commerce generally is supposed to guarantee.
Japan, it is true, does not enter the arena as a competitor in the production of goods manufactured of iron and steel, such as machinery, etc., which forms so essential a part of the exports of England, America, and Germany. Nor does it appear that she will be able to accomplish this for many years to come. On the other hand, in lighter materials, and many of the smaller wares, which are so essential to modern life and add so much to the almost necessary conveniences and comforts thereof, she has already won her place and is apparently determined to hold this position, and even to improve it. The London Times informs us that the Japanese government has recently appointed a delegate to travel through China, Korea and Manchuria, in order to study both the agricultural and commercial conditions of these countries, with a view to the extension and consolidation of her trade and commerce. It is reported that, at first, a high official of the government was appointed. Owing however to the immense pressure of business, consequent on the prolonged war, and the necessary anxieties, which this war has entailed, he could not be spared. A competent substitute has been appointed to carry the task through. He will apparently call first at Shanghai on his way down, and thence proceed direct to Canton. Having made himself familiar with the questions whose mastery is the object of his visit, he will next proceed to Swatow, Amoy, Fuzhou, Shanghai, Soochow, and thence to Koumou and Hankow. When he has finished his work in China, he will visit Manchuria, and return to his native country, via Korea. The Chinese officials at the different towns and cities, which it is the intention of the Japanese commissioner to visit have been ordered by the Chinese government to make all necessary provisions, and arrangements, that as few inconveniences as possible may be encountered.
He is to be received and escorted with due respect, and no difficulties are to be placed in his way by the Chinese officials. As he will reach Shanghai in a day or so, the Viceroy of the Two Kiang has already received instructions to give the necessary welcome.
Commercial commissions have already been appointed by other Governments and especially by that of Great Britain, in order to study the conditions of commercial pressures, and grasp the facts which are supposed to militate against, or impel towards this desideratum. It is sometimes complained that little practical advantages seem to follow the appointment and work of such commissions, and that the game is hardly worth the expense of tracking it down. However this may be, it is certain that Japan will make some capital out of each study that the governments of the West. The Japanese government, her consuls and her business pioneers understand the conditions of life in China far better than the European does, and will discover openings for extended trade, which in all probability would remain hidden from the Westerner. Be this as it may, the lesson is obvious. If our merchants are to hold their own, they must also watch for openings, and ascertain what kind of goods are essential to the Chinese, and what types of these goods are most appreciated. The Japanese, and everybody and everything pertaining to them, are now, and, for some time to come, will probably be held in high respect with the Chinese, and they will therefore meet with every encouragement at the hands of the mandarins, who, may be, are dreading that they too, in the near future, will be able to exert the same influence as Japan is commencing to day. They will willingly place themselves under theguidance of the master mind of the island Kingdom. What is obvious however, is, that in almost every sphere, in which she can bring her influence to bear, military, naval, commercial, and agricultural, Japan is almost feverish in her anxiety to extend her power, and make others indebted to her, by virtue of what she has to offer them. Fortunately, China covers a wide area. Her markets are limitless. Her population comprises countless millions.
Moreover, the manufactures which Japan produces for her customers are less substantial wares than Great Britain's manufactures; otherwise commercial jealousy, which engender commercial jealousy, which, with our ally, is to be avoided.

Legal Documents at Home.

It is notified in the Government Gazette that owing to difficulties that have arisen in connection with the attestation of signatures to documents executed in the Colonies and required for use in England, persons who may have occasion to send certificates, powers of attorney, judicial acts or other documents for use in the United Kingdom, should have these documents authenticated in this Colony by His Excellency the Governor, as the Secretary of State for the Colonies is not prepared to certify for legitimation any signature except that of the Governor.

Thieves Come and Go.

A correspondent writes:—Your readers may have noticed some little time since a curious sentence passed by Mr. F. A.
Hazelard at the Magistrate's, under which a trespassing Chinaman was fined $100 for loitering near the Nurses' Quarters above the Government Civil Hospital. The sentence seemed to be a very heavy one, but I was convinced that there was a very sound reason for the Magistrate's action. Now I hear that a large gang of the 'thieving and bur-glarous' population of the neighbouring 'purlieu' have been hanging around the western district, and that the Police are having their hands pretty full over watching property fall over their shoulders. This, of course, throws quite a new light upon the sentence referred to.
But the natural question arises, why not meet emergencies with the emergency powers of the Executive? When it becomes well known to the Police that an unusually large number of persons are in the Colony whose presence are dangerous to the peace and good order of the Colony, why does not the Executive not set at once upon a well-known law of Hongkong, and cause such undesirable persons to be deported from our shores? The Police Department now commands the confidence of the Executive and the community. Why hesitate to get rid of the scum which keeps gathering over our law-abiding citizens? We publish this with pleasure. The Executive, we believe, do all the Colony of many known rascals from Kwangtung, and all the older residents hope this wholesome policy will be continued.

STEARNS HEADACHE CURE.

TIMELY SUGGESTION.

This is the season of the year when the president and careful housewife replenishes her supply of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.
It is certain to be needed before the winter sets in, and results are much more prompt and satisfactory when it is kept at hand and given as soon as the cold is contracted and before it has become settled in the system. In almost every instance a severe cold may be avoided off by taking this remedy freely as soon as the first indication of the cold appears. There is no danger in giving it to children for it contains no harmful substance. It is pleasant to take—both adults and children like it. Buy it and you will get the best. It always cures. Sold by All Dealers. WATKINS & Co., Ltd., General Agents.

LOCAL A-D COAST NEWS.

A Tokio message to the Matrichi states that surveying will be commenced shortly has officially declared that the expedition lands in the Arctic Ocean has ended with the death of all the members of the party.It is proposed to amalgamate the Detective Attacked.

Last night a Chinese detective, while attempting to arrest a man at Wanchai, was set upon by a number of the Cotton Mill's employees and was rather roughly handled. One man, who advised the crowd to strike the officer and endeavoured to urge the coolies on in many ways, was arrested and this morning called to account for his actions, at the Magistrate. He was ordered to pay a fine of $50 or in default be imprisoned for two months.

Death of Confucius.

To-morrow is the anniversary of the death of Confucius and will be accordingly honoured by the Chinese. In connection with the ceremonies to take place a large unmanned place of entertainment has been erected on the east side of the Polo Ground and last night was patronized by large crowds of Chinese from Wanchai and surrounding districts. The entertainment provided is of a varied character, and refreshments are also to be obtained.

THE RUSSO-JAPANESE WAR.

Demonstration From Vladivostok.

TOKYO, May 6.

It is reported that four Russian vessels from Vladivostok, apparently torpedo-boats, at noon yesterday, off Hokkaido, fired on a sailing vessel, which was set on fire. The Russians altered northwards in the afternoon. Five sailors were rescued.

Three of the torpedo-boats seen off Hokkaido were 100 feet long, and one 130 feet; they were all two-funnelled.

The Russians ordered the crew off the sailing vessel, poured kerosene over it, set it on fire, and set it twice on fire. They then made off to the northward, detaining the master of the destroyed ship. The other members of the crew were landed.

It is stated as probable that the Russian warships sailed out from Vladivostok simultaneously with the torpedo-boats.

It has transpired that the sailing vessel was the third "Kawata Maru," of 198 tons. The crew are safe.

It is officially reported that the Japanese from Tancheng are gradually deloading the Russian cavalry in that direction. On the 1st of May they reached Kuyuta, twenty-seven miles north of Tungshu.

On the 4th inst. also the Japanese from Fakuang deloading the Russians from Ershiliga and Tancheng, thirty miles north-east of Fakuang, and occupied Papiotun, immediately north, at seven in the afternoon.

Russian Ambushes.

The s.s. "Whampoa," which until recently belonged to Messrs Butterfield and Swire left Shanghai on May 7 for Europe, taking a number of Russians who have lost their reason through the horrors of war. Elaborate precautions were taken for their safety, the vessel having been placed in the hands of the Old Dock in order to have padded cabins, etc., fitted up. Wire-netting has been put up all round the ship to prevent any of the Russians from jumping overboard. A number of soldiers also went to act as an escort to these unfortunate men. It is said that no less than 3,000 Russians have become demented as the result of the fighting in Port Arthur and round Mukden.

LAWN TENNIS.

The Annual Tournaments.

The annual Lawn Tennis tournaments promoted by the Hongkong Cricket Club, and being played on the Cricket Ground, are fast nearing completion.

In the Championship event the first only remains to be played. The contestants are R. P. C. Master and H. Pinckney, and popular fancy has singled out the former as the probable winner. To gain the title of Champion the winner of this match has to play H. Hancock, who holds the title at present. The form shown by H. Hancock warrants the assertion that he will give the aspirant for the title a good game.

The Single Handicap, for A Class members, has also narrowed down. One of the semi-finals has already been played, and the other, between R. P. C. Master (wins 15/2) and P. Lawson (scr.) will be played shortly. The winner of this match meets H. Pinckney (wins 30/1) in the final.

The Single Handicap, for B Class members, has not advanced so far. One game in the third round—W. E. Craig (wins 30) v. C. H. Fallon (wins 15)—is still unplayed. W. King (wins 30) meets the winner of it in the semi-final and E. O. Bird (wins 3/6) meets R. Henderson (wins 3/6) in the other semi-final.

Two games only remain to be played in the Double Handicap, the semi-final—E. Oranison and H. R. Phillips against Dr. Swan and Koch—and the final, in which P. Knyvet and R. B. Beattie meet the winners of the semi-final.

The final of the Professions Pair alone remains to be decided to complete this tournament. A Boyd and R. Mauphure, representing Banking, will meet T. Sercombe Smith and H. R. Phillips representing the Civil Service. This game is to be played today.

Civil Service C. C.

A Tennis Tournament is to be held by the Civil Service Cricket Club entries for which close on 31st May.

PRAYA EAST RECLAMATION.

The Scheme Postponed.

A meeting of marine lot owners interested in the Praya East Reclamation scheme was held at the City Hall this afternoon commencing at 3 o'clock. Sir Paul Chater presided, and there were about 26 lot-holders present. Sir Paul Chater, having read the notice convening the meeting, said:—Gentlemen, As some of you have this afternoon were not present at the meeting held on the 17th April, 1904, it may not be out of place if I give a short resume of what has taken place up to the present, which will at the same time serve to refresh the memory of those who attended that meeting. The proposition of the Praya East Reclamation was originally made by me to the Government so far back as the 12th June, 1900. The scheme as then set forth was not, however, acceptable, the Government contending that the terms proposed were unduly favourable to the lot-holders, and asking for an equal division of the value of the land reclaimed after deduction of the expenses of reclamation. To this I could not assent unless on their part the Government would consent to include in the cost of reclamation the compensation that would undoubtedly be claimed by Marine Lot holders for loss of frontage, etc., on their existing lots during the progress of the works—and for the diminished value of these lots on completion of the reclamation. I suggested as an alternative a further extension of the reclamation by another seventy-five feet to be added to the strip of land reserved for Godown, making the depth of the reclamation 520 feet instead of 445 feet as originally proposed, and a payment to the Treasury by the Marine Lot holders of a premium of 55 cents per foot on every foot of building land to be leased to them. To this the Government replied that they were prepared, provided you assented to recommend to the Secretary of State the general acceptance of the scheme subject to certain conditions (set forth in a letter to me of the 10th February 1901 and laid before you at the meeting of 17th April 1901) and no modification of the Secretary of State might deem necessary. The position of affairs was then placed before you at the meeting held on 27th April 1901, and you will remember that the following resolutions were then put and carried, unanimously:—

First: That the proposals for the Praya East Reclamation embodied in the correspondence between Mr. Chater and the Government and published in the local papers be accepted in principle, and Mr. Chater is hereby authorized to forward this resolution to the Colonial Secretary.

Second: That the holders of lots fronting the sea authorize the Government to proceed forthwith with the preliminary surveys and plans and undertake to contribute in proportion to their Marine frontages to the expenses incurred by the Government in so doing.

These resolutions were on the 10th April, 1901, forwarded by me to the Government, and on my letter of that date, which was at the time published in the local press. Since that date I have up till now had no further communication of the Government bearing on this scheme, except one of the 29th July, 1901, merely raising the question of why certain Inland Lots should come into the scheme. I have now to read to you a letter received by me from the Colonial Secretary, dated March 19, 1905. From this you will see that His Excellency the Governor is now prepared to recommend to the Secretary of State for the Colonies that a reclamation on the lines shown on the attached plans should be carried out by the Government on behalf of Marine Lot holders, subject to the conditions detailed in the Governor's letter of 12th February, 1901, and which were, as I have already said, laid before you on April 17, 1901, and subject to any modifications or of additions to the same that the Secretary of State for the Colonies may deem necessary, and attributing the cause for the long delay to correspondence with the naval and military authorities over the boundary to the reclamation on this west side, and with private owners over that of the east. A reference to the two plans both of which are laid on the table shows a considerable alteration in the plan in now proposed to adopt from that submitted to you on April 17, 1901. The new plan shows three blocks of building area as against two only in the old, and three new streets, each 75 feet wide, as against two in the old—cross streets twelve in number, each 75 feet wide, as against ten of only 50 feet wide. A glance at the two plans at a shows that the Government propose to go further out than was the original plan, thus giving to the Marine Lot holders a somewhat larger area for building than necessarily increasing the amount of capital to be expended by them on the scheme, though not the actual cost per square foot of reclamation, the principal item of cost of which is of course the sea wall. When I last addressed you I gave the cost per square foot of building land at 75 cents to $1 and I am still of opinion that the work can be done at this price. The Government, however, now estimate the cost at $1.30 per square foot of building land, an approximate estimate only; no detailed survey of the bed of the sea having been made, although at our meeting of the 17th April we passed the resolution referred to above authorizing them to proceed forthwith with the preliminary surveys and plans and undertaking to contribute in proportion to our Marine frontages to the expenses thereof. Gentlemen, I am of opinion that the Government's plan is a good one, and it rests with you to say whether it should be at once accepted and a start made with as little delay as possible, or whether in your opinion and having in view the large number of vacant tenements now existing in the Wanchai district it is expedient to add to the Colony this large area of building land, and the scheme should not rather, while not been actually and definitely abandoned, be postponed to some future day. I shall be glad of any expression of your views, and to answer to the best of my ability any questions you may wish to put.

There were no questions, and Mr. A. J. Raymond proposed that in view of the long period that had elapsed since the scheme was first mooted and looking to the fact that the filling up on the Wanchai district which was to be expected with the advent of tramway communication has not taken place, it is inexpedient at the present time to take any further steps towards the proposed reclamation.

Mr. E. Shellin seconded the motion, which was carried with one dissentient. That concluded the business.

GRACE BEFORE MEAT.

A Scottish Story.

Bitter and raw was the morning air thirty years ago when I stepped, at 8 a.m., out of a third-class smoking carriage to the platform of Carlisle station. It was only for a stop of twenty minutes, but what a relief after spending a night on the Scottish Express, tossing from side to side, chilly and cold, with whiskey flask empty, and sleep impossible, owing to the fearful jolting and swaying of the carriage. I stepped out on one of the platforms of the great station and to my surprise observed a goodly number of clergymen briskly leaving first-class carriages. They were a hurried hungry lot. I walked sharply to the refreshment room but the clergymen continued hastily on to the Hotel. I asked a guard who the lot were and what was on.

"Oh! they're Scottish clergymen, bound for Edinburgh to attend the great meeting to-day. They telegraphed the Hotel to have a hot breakfast ready for them and I expect they won't lose much time."

"Well, I am off to the Hotel, too," said I, snatching a chance of joining at the breakfast.

I reached the Hotel, tipped a waiter handsomely, and was surreptitiously shown into the breakfast room, where the Scottish clergymen were hastily and hungrily seated themselves; whilst waiters rushed around pouring out steaming coffee and fetching hot rolls and all the ingredients of a good breakfast. Just a quarter of an hour later, and the finished clergymen about to begin when, Lo, a voice respectfully and deeply demanded attention.

It came from a strange gentleman dressed in the clerical attire of the Church of England who up to the present had stood hands in pockets, back to fire, and to whose tall portly presence a stern, somewhat inflammatory, red face lent an air of dignity and majesty that was literally commanding. "Gentlemen and fellow clergymen. Is it thus you eat your food, despite me, 'Have you no word of thanks and prayer?'"

Most of the clergymen were young but even those that were old could not resist the waiters' tale of the old fellow to keep quiet and an awkward silence fell on the assembly.

"Let me at least say a few words for you. And ere explanation could be given the old fellow was eloquently pouring forth a prayer the like of which I had never heard before nor have I since. 'Oh Lord, bless the food we are about to partake', began he (the appetizing flavour of coffee here was no exaggerating I distinctly heard muttered anathemas from some of the clergymen). 'We thank Thee, Oh Lord, that in the goodness of Thy loving mercy Thou didst ordain that we Thy unworthy servants, should live in days like these' (here some of the clerics with their mutiny in their eyes raised their heads from the prayerful attitude they had taken up, and bid fair to start their breakfast, but meeting the stern unflinching gaze of the preacher, hastily again assumed a devout position) 'when food like that before us and of which we are about to partake, pleasing both to the appetite and nostrils' (Oh the smell of that hot coffee, buttered rolls and fried roles) 'tempted us into forgetting Thee Oh Lord, but Thy loving kindness and forgiveness are ever shown. As in the days when Thou chastened Thy people with famine and drought Thou didst feed Thy servant with bread and flesh by the mouth of ravens and quench his thirst at the brook, and as in the days of Abrahah when cabs of doves' dung were gathered shekels of silver, and further when Thou didst order Ezekiel the prophet. . . ."

Whatsoever point he was aiming for was lost for at this moment the hurried notes of the bell summoning the passengers to the train, was heard and both the grace and the appetizing breakfast had to be cut short and speedily exit made by the clergymen without them having even the opportunity of pocketing a few rolls owing to the eyes of the waiters that were upon them. After the bill had been paid, the old clergymen, who had not even been thanked for his grace, with a twinkle in his eye and a cigar between his teeth paraded along the platform to the convulsive amusement of a few young bloods who had followed him from the Hotel. Fury, indignation and murder, were in the eyes of the hungry and enraged clerics. But what could they do? Only smile as the train whirled them past the supposed old clergymen who, blowing a whiff from his cigar, waved a handkerchief in mock farewell.—Contributed.

RY WHARF AND WAVE.

The river steamer "Wo Kwei" which, as previously reported by us, ran upon the Jom Hon rock, about twenty miles below Wuohow, has been temporarily repaired and is now on her way to Hongkong, where she will be docked.

Four collisions occurred at Moiti on May 7, during a dense fog. The P. & O. intermediate steamer "Banco" got aground on a small island near Muluoreima; she sustained a concavity of three feet diameter in the bow above the waterline, but managed to sail to Kowloon. The British steamer "Highlander" (4,695 tons net) also grounded, but was refloated and entered Moiti for repairs.

Hongkong is becoming quite famed for motor and oil launches, and recently another launch was despatched to Manila. The launch was built by the Iberia Company to the order of Mr. Gonzalez, and was fitted with a 12-horsepower power patrol motor. The boat was made of steel, and is 25 feet long. On the trial trip a speed of nine miles was registered and the launch gave every satisfaction. Mr. G. C. Moxon is the sole agent for Listers petrol motors.
